WRIT APPEAL NO.1901 OF 2005

J U D G M E N T (Per the Hon'ble Sri Bilal Nazki, ACJ)

Aggrieved of the order passed on 07-09-2005 by second respondent, the writ petitioner/appellant filed a revision before the first respondent on 17-09-2005. Along with the revision, she filed an application seeking stay. 17-09-2005 was a Saturday. She waited only for Monday and on Tuesday i.e. on 20-09-2005, she filed the writ petition complaining against the first respondent that no orders have been passed in the stay application and also challenged the order, which she had already challenged in the revision. Without waiting for the orders being passed by the first respondent, even for a week, the petitioner approached this Court and the learned Single Judge was right in dismissing the writ petition on the ground that two remedies could not be prosecuted simultaneously. The learned Single Judge, however, gave direction to the first respondent to dispose of the matter within three weeks. Not contending even with this order, this appeal has been filed. The whole case shows an attempt to abuse process of law. Therefore, we dismiss this writ appeal imposing costs of Rs.2,000/- (Rupees two thousand only), which shall be deposited towards the Legal Services Authority within a period of two weeks.
